

Helena Palma Carvalho

Phone: +351 968525763

E-mail: helena.palma.carvalho@gmail.com

Linkedin: www.linkedin.com/in/helenapcarvalho

Helena Carvalho is a financial economist currently working as a macroprudential policy officer in the Financial Stability Department of the Bank of Portugal. Her research is focused on financial economics and monetary and financial history, and she also has an interest in the contemporary economic history of Portugal. After concluding her undergraduate in Economics at Catolica Lisbon School of Business and Economics in 2018, she enrolled in the MSc Economic History at the London School of Economics. She graduated from LSE with a distinction in 2019 with a dissertation entitled "Land Inequality, Agricultural Productivity, and the Portuguese Agrarian Reform (1974-1976)" (now available in the APHES Working Papers Series). Starting next Fall, she will be pursuing a PhD in Financial Economics at the University College London.

Research Interests

Financial Economics; Public Finance; Financial and Monetary History; Macroeconomics; Econometrics; Research Methods