

João Pereira dos Santos

Bio

Sou Professor Auxiliar no ISEG e investigador no RWI – Leibniz Institute for Economic Research (Essen), IZA – Institute for Labor Economics (Bona) e REM/ UECE.

Defendi a minha tese de doutoramento em Economia, sobre a medição de efeitos causais através de experiências naturais e de campo, na Nova SBE, em 2021. Júri: José Tavares, Mário Centeno, Sandra Sequeira, Miguel Portela, Pedro Martins e Pedro Vicente.

Fui Professor Auxiliar Convidado na Nova SBE e na Nova School of Law. Durante o primeiro semestre de 2019, fiz parte da minha investigação doutoral na Universidade de Harvard com uma bolsa FCT-Fulbright e, em 2016, completei o Advanced Studies Program in International Economic Policy Research do Kiel Institute for the World Economy.

Entre 2019 e 2021, servi como técnico especialista no gabinete do Secretário de Estado Adjunto do Primeiro-Ministro.

Os meus interesses de investigação são a economia pública, urbana, política e a história económica. Na minha investigação, preocupo-me em avaliar os efeitos causais de choques e mudanças de políticas. Tenho usado experiências e dados históricos para compreender melhor os problemas contemporâneos. Tenciono fazê-lo, cada vez mais, com a ajuda dos membros da APHES.
