

Ana Sofia Ribeiro, Assistant researcher of the Interdisciplinary Center of History, Cultures and Society of Évora University, Invited Assistant Professor of the Évora University's History Department

Ana Sofia Ribeiro was born in Porto, in 1982.

She is graduated in History by the Faculty of Arts, University of Porto in 2005. In the same institution she got a Master in Local and Regional Studies (2008) and History PhD in 2011 supervised by Professor Amélia Polónia and Professor Margrit Schulte- Bëerbhul (U. Dusseldorf) with a thesis entitled "Mechanisms and criteria of cooperation in trading networks of the First Global Age. The case study of Simon Ruiz network, 1557-1606". She got an FCT post doc fellowship at CIDEHUS (UÉ) and CITCEM (UP) between 2012 e 2018 with the project "Trans-national and trans-imperial trade and finance practices during the Iberian Union of Crowns". In 2019 she was hired as an Assistant Researcher at Évora University, where is currently works. There she teaches courses in the fields of research methods, digital humanities and early modern history.

She is the author of Convívios Difíceis: viver, pensar e sentir a violência no Porto de setecentos (1750-1777) (Afrontamento, 2011) and Early Modern Trading networks in Europe. Cooperation and Simon Ruiz (Routledge, 2016). She has published in journals like Cuadernos de Historia Moderna, Storia Economica, among others. She is author of book chapters in relevant international publishers like Cambridge University Press, Brill or Sílex.

Her research interests are around early modern Iberian economic and social history, namely violence and crime history, trading and financial private history in Hispanic Monarchy, Iberian overseas empires, digital humanities (digital mapping, social network analysis and natural language processing).

She was involved in several research projects in Portugal and the European scope, highlighting DyncoopNet (UP), Resistance (UÉ), Co-evolution and self-organization of cooperation (UNL), Trata de Negros (USevilla). Presently she is the Principal Investigator of the project Monsoon: the Habsburg Estado da Índia in digital perspective (1580-1640).

She is an APHES member since 2007.